Proposed Rights of Children and Young Persons (Wales) Measure

Facebook Response from Tina Sava

To protect the rights of the child first of all there is a need for a law that gives the opportunity and the obligation of the mother/and father to study and pass a course about learning basic skills of how to raise a child between 0-1 year-a two weeks course; when the child is between 1-3 years another two weeks course and when the child is between... See more 3-7 years another two weeks or more course. Could be an assessment at the end to pass it and a reward if passes first time.

When the age of having babies declined so much over the past years there is a need to teach the youngsters about what a child means in their life and about how a child should be treated, loved, educated and cared for.

To drive a car we need a licence , I believe to raise a child and send him in life we should all have a licence kind - skills that include a bit of psychology , a bit of human rights, a bit of medicine - a short course of how to understand the needs of a child.Many of us treat their children wrong only because they don't know what to do in a certain situation, they are not prepared for life themselves in many cases, therefore guiding the youngsters through courses like these would bring two positive sides together-a better skilled family and a better raised child.
