Lesley Griffiths: The 2009 Memorandum of Understanding includes provision for collaboration and co-operation in the development of primary healthcare systems, including the professional development of healthcare staff and staff exchange programmes. No Ministers have visited Chongqing in direct regard to the MOU and negotiations over the training programme have taken place via e-mail.

The Chief Medical Officer is currently visiting the Chongqing Health Bureau, and the FM also met officials from the Bureau during his visit to China last October, but this was in the margins of another event and not related to the training programme which is under development. Lesley Griffiths: Work between L'Ecole des Haute Etudes en Sante Publique and Public Health Wales includes the hosting of trainees undertaking comparative studies of the health and social care systems in France and Wales, and occasional exchange meetings to share perspectives on current challenges to public health. In addition to these formal elements, collaborative work on disability issues, conducted by email, has emerged as a result of the latter meetings.

Four Consultants in Public Health from the former National Public Health Service Wales attended a 2 day exchange meeting in Rennes France on 11 and 12 March 2009 where they presented on a range of topics of common interest. On 8 and 9 February 2011 4 members of staff from L'Ecole des Haute Etudes en Sante Publique and one trainee came to join staff from Public Health Wales in Cardiff. The purpose of these visits was to share perspectives on current challenges to public health.

From 15 November 2010 – 14 January 2011 Public Health Wales hosted 2 trainees from L'Ecole des Haute Etudes en Sante Publique undertaking a comparative study of unscheduled care services in France and in Wales. Similarly, from 14 November 2011 – 13 January 2012 Public Health Wales hosted 1 trainee from L'Ecole des Haute Etudes en Sante Publique undertaking a comparative study of disability legislation and the impact of that legislation in France and Wales.

The purpose of these training attachments is to provide trainees with opportunities to identify similarities and differences in 2 countries with different legal infrastructure and health systems in addressing the same type of health challenge, and drawing out lessons each country can learn from the other. In support of these exchange meetings, hosting by Wales of French trainees, and ongoing joint work on disability, since 2009 correspondence has mainly been by email. Content covered:

Development of a model of social participation which will influence further work on the roles of the state and of disability legislation in promoting either disability or inclusion

Arrangements to enable Public Health Wales to host French trainees with appropriate contracts, safeguards and training feedback

Areas of common interest so that exchange meeting agendas can be agreed

Information and advice to assist those attending meetings in another country to find accommodation, make travel arrangements and find the venue

L'Ecole des Haute Etudes en Sante Publique is not in collaboration with the Welsh Government, currently therefore there are no future collaboration arrangements between L'Ecole des Haute Etudes en Sante Publique and the Welsh Government.

Lesley Griffiths: In January 2012, we issued new guidelines to hospitals, community and social care settings, and nursing/residential homes in Wales about the management of norovirus outbreaks. The guidelines strengthen current arrangements to ensure appropriate care is delivered to patients safely and effectively while disruption to important and essential services is minimised.
