The Conservation (Natural Habitats, &c.) (Amendment) (Wales) Regulations 2004

EXPLANATORY NOTE

(This note is not part of the Regulations)

These Regulations, which apply to Wales, amend the Conservation (Natural Habitats, &c.) Regulations 1994 (“the 1994 Regulations”) which make provision for implementing Council Directive 92/43/EEC on the conservation of natural habitats and of wild fauna and flora (O.J. No. L206, 22.7.92, p.7), amended by the Act of Accession to the European Union of Austria, Finland and Sweden (O.J. No. C241, 29.8.94) and by Council Directive 97/62/EC (O.J. No. L305, 8.11.97, p.42).

The Regulations insert into the 1994 Regulations a new regulation 37A which imposes upon the National Assembly for Wales (to whom the functions of the Secretary of State under the 1994 Regulations have been transferred in relation to Wales) a duty to make arrangements for the surveillance of the conservation status of natural habitat types of Community interest and species of Community interest. They also insert a new regulation 41A, imposing a duty on the National Assembly to make arrangements to monitor the incidental capturing and killing of animals of a European protected species.

Regulation 39(1)(d) of the 1994 Regulations, which prohibits damage and destruction of the breeding sites and resting places of animals of a European protected species, is amended to prohibit, in addition, acts which result in the deterioration of such sites or places. Regulation 39(2) is amended to make it an offence to trade in animals belonging to protected species which originate in any Member State as well as animals belonging to protected species native to Great Britain. A similar amendment is made to regulation 43(2) in relation to the offence of trading in wild plants. The Regulations create a new defence to regulation 39(2) in relation to animals lawfully taken or killed before 10 June 1994, replacing regulation 39(4). A similar change is made in regulation 43 (protection of wild plants).

Regulation 40 of the 1994 Regulations, which contains exceptions from regulation 39, is amended to secure that the exceptions at regulation 40(1), (2) and (3)(a) and (b) apply only where there is no satisfactory alternative and the act will not be detrimental to the maintenance of the species concerned at a favourable conservation status in their natural range. Regulation 40(3)(c) is replaced by regulation 40(3B), and this exception applies only where the person seeking to rely on it was not aware and could not reasonably have been expected to be aware of the effect of his act on an animal of a protected species; a similar amendment is also made in regulation 43(4) (protection of wild plants). Regulation 40(5) to (7) is revoked.

Regulation 41 of the 1994 Regulations is amended to impose a duty on the National Assembly to review the lists of prohibited modes of taking, killing and transport in paragraphs (3) to (5).

Regulation 49(2)(b) of the 1994 Regulations (considerations of overriding public interest) is amended to provide that where a site hosts a priority natural habitat or a priority species, the reasons which may constitute imperative reasons of overriding public interest under that subsection are those reasons which, in the view of the National Assembly, having considered the opinion of the European Commission, are imperative reasons of overriding public interest.

The Regulations also make other minor or consequential amendments.
